IWELVE HOURS OF SIGHTSEEING AND DINING IN WASHINGTON.

Wheelwomen Formed His Escort About the City - Elaborate Lunch at the Cht. nese Embessy and a Dinner in His Honor by John W. Foster-A Visit to the Capttol and a Call on Secretary Carltole. WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 .- LI Hung Chang put in twelve of the busiest hours of his seventyfour years between 9 o'clock this morning, when he started from the Arlington Hotel to go sightseeing at the national capital, and o'clock this evening, when he arose from the table at ex-Secretary Foster's dinner and retired to his room on the main floor of his hotel. There have been many novel features since Earl Li arrived here last night, but none seemed to strike him more favorably and make a great er impression upon him than the escort sur-rounding his movements in public to-day. Instead of gayly caparisoned booted and spurred cavalrymen, such as his Excellency has been used to, a corps of volunteers, composed of women bleyelists, followed the carriage of the great man all over Washington. No matter what twists and turns were resorted to by the holder of the ribbons of the four dapple greys, the wheelwomen would not be balked in their efforts to catch a glimpse of the distinguished visitor from the East, They rode around the carriage times innumerable, and their persistence in trying to catch a gimpse of him seemed to tickle Li immensely, for he chuckled and grinned and nodded an provingly at several of the fairest of his pleasant termenters, which naturally put them in the eventh heaven of delight.

While the Viceroy and his party were doing the Capitol building the bicyclers waited patiently for the reappearance of the famous yellow-lacketed statesman and accompanied him to the Chinese Legation building, two miles from the Capital. Here they were compelled to abandon the chase, for it was understood that no fereigners would be tolerated inside the embassy, and this hint was sufficient to disperse the self-constituted escort. But the girls had a good time during this run, and several times later in the day Li referred in the pleasantest manner to the novel escort which had been furnished him at the capital of the United States, gave up when they did, for Li put in a solid three-quarters of an hour at the Chinese Embassy, which he reached about 1014 o'clock in the forenoon.

American workmen as well as Chinese servants have been busy for several days putting Minister Yang's residence in order to receive the Ambassador from the Emperor, and the resuits were apparent when he was ushered into the most hometike place he has visited since leaving China. A white card had been given Small, the Washington and New York florist, in regard to the decorations, and there was a magnificent display of China asters of pink, white, and purple; orobids from Brazil, Mexico, and the United States, and American beauty roses, the latter being the favorite blooms of the Minister's wife. Yellow was the prevailing tone in the decorations, and this idea was carried out particularly in the orchid varieties, which embraced cattalia citrana, a beauti ful lemon-bued variety indigenous to Mexico: oscidum varicosium rogersii, with its yellow biossoms, from Brazii, and the alimanda from Newport, R. I., a trailing orchid, with large cup-shaped vellow blooms, resembling in general appearance the Virginia creeper. flowers were arranged in large vases throughout the parlor, halls, and dining room of the embassy, and the air was redolent with their exquisite perfume.

One of the best effects in decorative work was presented in the ballroom, to which the Viceroy was conducted upon his arrival at the embassy. This apartment had been transformed into a picture of Oriental splendor, to which the arts of many nations, and principally China, had contributed. At the south end was a magnifice tly carved divan, with richly embrodered coverings and cushions of red satin, wrought in gold thread. On either side of this divan were divisional or the sating of gold thread. On either side of this divan were eight chairs of carved mahogany and small tables. Each chair was covered with red satin and gold, in which lions and dragons, in raised gold, in which lions and dragons, in raised gold work, were complicuous. Settings of paims and large vases of American Beauty roses, were blaced in every nook and cranny of this apartment, which is turnished partly in the American style, except for rare cases and ornaments of jade and cloisons. At the north end a screen concealed some American devices for the entertainment of Li Hong Chang, among them being beautifully caved music boxes and a graphiaphone. Minister Yang is partial to all kinds of musical boxes and has many exquisitively carved specimens as well as those of curious workmanship. One from Switzgerland plays several airs and has a little bird that springs out and warbles its wan lays as an interlude to the other melodies. At the lunch the menu was composed of dishes finitely Chinese, The wines were also from that country, except the champagne. The bill of fare was: Birds need souch, pigeon eggs served, whole with thick sauce, crash meat, shrimp balls, young hamboo shoots throught from China in cans, sweetmeats, nuts, and tea. Each of these dishes was served in courses, with wine or cups of fragrant tea for each. The table was decorated with lilies and roses in handsome jardinières.

Just as soon as he could escape from the fraternal embraces of his countrymen at the Chinese Embassy, Li asstended matters so as to reach his hotel, where he had an appointment with ex-Secretary Foster to make calls upon the members of the Cabinet at present in Washlegton, Before he started Gen, Miles, who was secompanied by his young son and members of his staff, called to pay respects. They spent fifteen minutes with the Viceroy, who took a violent fancy to the youth, and piled him with quastions about his school and what he expected to become as a man. He asked Gen, Miles how old he was, and when the General told him he had served with Grant, the Viceroy became deeply interested, and asked numerous questions about Grant's army life.

Secretary and Mrs. Carlisle were the only members of the Cabinet circle whose house was open for the reception of visitors, the families of the other members of President Cleveland's official household being at the summer resorts or abroad. The Viceroy spent over an hour in the discussion of finance and tariff with Secretary Carlisle, and was annazed and grantified with the Secretary's knowledge of the Chinese systems and the firm grasp he had on subjects that had pizzled China's chief thankers.

Mr. Foster, with courtesy peculiarly his own, changed the order of things usual on such occasions, so that his distinguished guest would not sit at his right hand but be his vis-A-vis, on the oppositeside of the width of the table.

All the guests were prompt about arriving, and at 6:30 all was in readiness for the feast. For two hours and a half the party sat at table or else smoked and chatted, and it was noted that for the first time since his arrival in this country Li ate some Melican food and sipped a little champagne.

Under orders from the acting Secretary of the Navy, the United States Marine Hand, under Prof. Fanciuli, was stationed in the large parlor adjacent to the banquet room, and discoursed appropriate selections during the evening. One piece in particular attracted the attention of the Viceroy, and he insisted upon its repetition when he learned that it was a march composed in his honor. Furthermore, he sent out for Fanciuli, and had the popular leader brought in to be presented to him and drink a glass of wine.

in his bonor. Furthermore, he sent out for Fanciulli, and had the copular leader brought in to be presented to him and drink a glass of wine.

Toasts and speechmaking were the order of the evening, but the remarks of the Viceroy were interrupted at their most interesting point by a disturbance outside the hotel by the crowd of speciators assembled with the hope of catching a glimpse of the Chinese statesman. Just as they thought their curlosity was about to be gratified a swarthy, piratical-looking, black-bearded Chinaman appeared at the ladies entrance and motioned his hands as if invoking slience. Thinking he might be the advance guard of the Viceroy, the crowd set up, a yell which drowned the voice of Li Hung Chang effectually, and he was compelled to sit down and stop talking, for the crowd, was outside the windows of the banquet room, and the noise male hearing impossible. After this episode, by which the current of his thoughts were chanced, Li Hung Chang concluded that rest was indispensable, and a few minutes past o'clock he bade his visitors good-night and was elevated to his apartments on the second floor of the Arlington, where President Cleveland had formerly slept.

It was ascertained subsequently that the innocent cause of all this trouble has the most romantic history of all the attendants upon the Viceroy. He has an excellent command of the English tongue and uses it in a manner that indicates education and intelligence of a high type. His chief duty seems to be caring for the pet parrots of Li Hung Chang, of which there are three, and to the accommodation of whose cage and attendant parior A is assigned. The latter says his name is Capt. Ben Luah, but it isn't. His name was once known as a brilliant one in Chinese naval history, but it will not be divinged by him.

The story of his life is a graphic one. He was the commander of a Chinese war vessel, and it was lost. In accordance with the Chinese custom, he was sentenced to be beheaded. His pat services had been of such an illustrious character

ing that his master's parrots are properly cared for and fed.

At the close of the banquet Mr. Foster addressed Li Hung Chang, regretting that his stay was so short in this country and wishing him a safe and pleasant passage home. Li Hung Chang responded through his interpreter in a written speech which met with much applause. He said:

"In acknowledging the hospitality extended."

I have to thank him for affording me an opportunity, before my departure from the capital of this country, to repeat once more the sincere expression of my gratitude and thankfulness to the American Government and citizens for the welcome and reception offered to me as representative of my august master the Emperor of China and the personification of the Chinese empire.

"Since the establishment of our treaty relations there have always been evidences of good friendship between our two countries, but all takes evidences, I dare say, have been sclipped by the Contiality and warmth displayed by the American Government and citizens in welcoming and receiving my special mission. Though I regret that my time does not allow me to make as long a sojourn in this country as I wish, in order to appreciate more fully the accomplishment and progress of the United States of America as a nation. I cannot help, during my brief visit here, to be struck and impressed by the liberty and freedom enjoyed by the propic, by the welfare and prosperity in their industrial and commercial pursuits, by the characteristics of their classical, historical, philosophical, and poetical literature, by the manner of application of the sclentific discoveries and inventions for promoting the happiness of makind, and by the display of their artistic tasts in the architecture of the public buildings, scribture, and palutings of their artistic tasts in the architecture of the public buildings, scribture, and palutings of their fartistic tasts in the architecture of the public buildings, scribture, and palutings of their fartistic tasts in the architecture of the public buildings, scribture, and palutings of their fartistic tasts in the architecture of the public buildings, scribture, and palutings of historical figures and facts, which my old friend J. "Gentlemen, I propose the toast to the friend of China, the Hon. J. W. Foster."

The banquet proper, which began at 6:50, closed at 8 o'clock, but Li Hung Chang remained until 9:15 conversing with those present. He drank sparingly of champagne during the banquet, and are a little ice cream, but touched no solid food.

At the Capitol building, which he visited in the morning, the Viceroy took a deep interest in everything. His first question was asked in the Fresident's room, which was unusually bare of furniture. He wanted to know whether the President's room, which was unusually bare of furniture. He wanted to know whether the President was there every day, and was much astonished when told that the Fresident used it but once for a few hours annually. He was carried to the rotunda, where he left his chairs and went around examining the historical paintings minutely. He is very fond of paintings and the sense in each had to be explained theroughly. He became deeply interested in the story of Pocahontas, which had to be related in full. The first military subject he happened to strike was the surrender of Burgoyne, which led him to ask if Grant were in it, and when told that he was not he wanted to know where Grant was at the time.

In the library he viewed the stacks of books with evident interest, and when introduced to Librarian Spofford he took a great fancy to him. He asked how old he was.

"Seventy," replied Mr. Spofford.

"You must have many books in your head," declared hi.

"But many more out of it," the librarian responded.

"Hut you must be a very wise man," persisted it.

"No. I know comparatively little," and at this Li laughed and d rected that Lo Fing Luh, his confidential secretary, be specially presented to Mr. Spofford.

Mr. Spofford.

Mr. Spofford asked Lo If he were a book man, and when Li learned of this he said: "No, not the book man, the book worm."

Lo told Mr. Spofford he was reading Emerson and translating passages from the American philosopher for the Viceroy, who was much pleased with him.

Then the chair was moved out on the Capitol portico, where the magnificent panorama of Washington was spread out. The aimosphere was exceptionally clear, fort Myer and Arlington, over on the Virginian hinls, being as vividly visible as if but a mile away. The Viceroy was charmed with the scene. Presently he began asking about the Washington monument, what it cost, how they built it, how did it compare with other high structures, and ended by declaring that he should go up to the top to-morrow and see for himself if all that was told him was true. After he had a smoke the pariy was led through Statuary Hail, but the statues of distinguished Americans did not interest the Viceroy after he found that Grant's was not there. He wondered why there was no statue of Grant anywhere in Washington, but when told that there was a fine painting of him at the White House of Representatives the gorgeous gallery over the Speaker's dock attracted his attention, and when told it was reserved for the press he laughtingly noted that it was finer than those of the President and the diplomatic corps. He was asked: if he waved to go over to the Congressional Library, which was possibly the finest huilding in the country; but when he found that it was unfinished, and had only six hundred Chinese books in it, he said he was too old to learn to read English and thought he deter go to the Legation, where he was due.

murisonment in Engined Has Made Him Insune-He Was Violent and Didn't Recogulze the Delegates from Irlah Societies Who Met Him Down the Bay.

Dr. Thomas Gallagher, who was released from Portland prison England a week ago, arrived on the steamship St. Paul yesterday afternoon. Dr. Gallagher left this country on March 14, 1883, on the steamer Parthia. Ten days after his arrival in England he was arrested, charged with complicity in the attempts made to blow up various public buildings in England with dynamite, and after a trial that lasted four days was sentenced to life imprisonment. When he left America he was a virile young man and a successful physician. Those Irishmen that went down the bay yesterday to meet him, having in mind the reports of his mental break-down, had their worst fears realized. Dr. Gallagher is a mental wreck, at times almost a raving maniac. The best his friends can hope for him is that in a year or two a cuiet life, nourishing food, and freedom from worry may restore him to health. The reception was a sad affair. Twice before the Doctor left the steamship he had violent spells, and had to be restrained by force from doing harm to himself or others. Most of the time he was nervous and irritable, and he had to be watched constantly.

When it was learned that he had sailed on the St. Paul, accompanied by Dr. McBride of the Political Prisoners' Fund Association, the Irish societies of this vicinity decided to charter a bont and go down the bay to take him from the steamship at Quarantine. Later they were to have had a demonstration in Madison Square Garden, with Dr. Gallagher as the central figure. This programme, however, was made dependent upon the doctor's condition. When Whitehead, another alleged dynamiter, was released from Portland prison on Aug. 25 last, it was said that Dr. Gallagher was mad, but the English authorities denied it so strongly that the Irishmen of this city hoped that while he might be physically weak he was mentally sound. One of the Brooklyn Annex ferryboats was accordingly chartered, and yesterday morning a large party, representing the Irish societies of this city, Brooklyn, Newark, and Philadelphia, boarded her. There were about 200 all told. From Philadelphia came Patrick O'Neil, Owen Kelly, and Capt. John Flanigan; from Brooklyn, Congressman Magner, P. F. Gilmore, and James McAuliffe, and from New York Gen. James R. O'Beirne Gen. Michael Kerwin, William Lyman, Capt. Edward T. McCrystal, Wauhope Lynn, Col. James Moran, P. J. Byrnes, and James T. Eagan. In addition to these there were on the boat Mrs. Kate Conclly of Brooklyn, Dr. Galagher's sister; Mrs. Kate Rose of Buffalo, a niece, and James and Daniel Gallagher, his

The boat left the Barge Office shortly after 9 o'clock. There was but one marring incident of the start. In honor of the event there had been hauled to the top of one of the boat's flagpoles a green flag, in the lower corner of which was the harp of Ireland and in the upper corner an Engilsh union jack. When the Irishmen saw this union of Ireland and England in the flag they got no angry and protested so vigorously that the shipper hurriedly pulled down the flag and put up in its place the real banner of Erin, and on another pole the Irish revolutionary flag. a tricolor of green, white, and orange.

After the run down to Quarantine the boat was fastened to the dock, and there was a wait until half past 2 o'clock before the St. Paul poked her black nose around Fort Wadsworth, during which time the band on board enterduring which time the band on board enter-tained the party with "The Wearing of the Green," "Garryowen," "Come Back to Erin," and other famous melodies. The committee in charge of the reception tried to arrange some definite plan. It had been originally intended to take the Doctor to the Savoy and entertain him there, but it was finally decided to wait and see what his condition was. When the St. Paul reached Quarantine the tug Gov. Flower put out, having on board the Recention Committee, which conthe tug Gov. Flower put out, having on board the Recention Committee, which consisted of James Gallagher, Daniel V. Clancer, William Lyman, Capt. O'Meagher Condon, Gen. O'Beirne P. J. Byrnes, and J. J. Joyce Gen. O'Beirne led the way below, where they were to meet Dr. Gallagher. When they saw him they were shocked beyond measure. Not one of his old friends would have known him. The handsome, stalwart Irishman of thirteen years ago had become almost an old man. His form, still strong, is bent and emaclated. His sunken cheeks are covered with a closely-clipped gray beard, and his hair has become but a flarrow rim of white about his baid head. His deep-set eyes gleam with the restless light of an unbalanced mind. He was dressed in a gray tweed suit and wore on his head a visorless golf cap of light gray. The Doctor was standing with Dr. McBride when the party advanced. Without wairing for a greeting he singled out his brother James and said:

"How do you do, Jim? How is Kate?" meaning his sister.

Gen. O'Beirne advanced and said:

"Gallagher, I'm glad to see you, my boy."

The Doctor drew back as if in distrust, and then, with a wild light in his eye, cried out:

"The United States must uphold her dignity. This is a nice way to treat a citizen."

He clenched his fist and pounded a table fiercely, and then began to strike to the right and left. He broke through the circle of those about him, and went along the passage, shouting about politics and religion, until two of the stewards who had been guarding him for the past two or three days caught him and put him into his stateroom. After a while, when he had quieted down, his brother went into the stateroom, but the Doctor had forgotten him and did not recognize him.

It was very evident to the committee that Dr. Gallagher could not be taken off the ship then, and Dr. McBride said that it was absolutely necessary to keep him quies, for he had slept very little on the trip, and was in a highly nervous state.

Gallagher could not be taken off the ship then, and Dr. McBride said that it was absolutely necessary to keep him quiet, for he had slept very little on the trip, and was in a highly nervous state.

The St. Paul came up to her pier with the party, and the Annex boat followed. On the way up the bay Dr. Gallagher was kept in his stateroom with his guards, and Dr. McBride told the story of the trip across. Dr. McBride told the story of the trip across. Dr. McBride and that the unfortunate man had been brutally treated in the prison. His body has many scars on it, and there was evidence that three ribs had been brokes. The boctor said that a keeper had knocked him down and jumped on him.

For the first three days of the voyage, Dr. McBride said, Dr. Gallagher had been comparatively incid, but he slept hardly any and was terribly restless. Each night he would get out of bed and dress many times, and Dr. McBride who feared that he might jump overboard, was kept continually on the watch. During the list three days of the voyage he had become very much worse, being violent at times. Chief Steward Thompson was the only one who seemed to have a quieting influence on him, and Dr. McBride was often compelled to give him opiates. He developed a religious mania, and several times it was necessary to confine him in his stateroom under guard of two and sometimes three stewards.

On Thursday night he became very violent, and at one time it was thought that he would fump oyerboard, but he was caught in time and continued in his stateroom until yesterday morning. Dr. McBride said that Dr. Gallagher was a mental and physical wreck, and that it would require a year or two of rest to put him in condition again. Often when he raves te thinks that be might a year or two of rest to put him in condition again, of the many one hear, he became violent and nearly knocked Dr. McBride down with a wild back ward sweep of his arm, The ferryboat had ted up and the women teatives of the Doctor were an the pier to meet him. He walked down the pan

This seemed to excite him greatly, and he stood in the carriage and, waving his cap in the air, shouted out incoherently. The trip to the hotel was made without further incident.

Dr. Gallagher was one of the eleven men arrested, convicted, and sentenced to life imprisonment in 1883 for blowing up with dynamite public buildings in London. Born in Glasgow and coming to America, was graduated trom the Believue Medical College in 1880. In the spring of 1883, having acquired a large practice in Greenpoint, he went abroad on account of ill health. He arrived in London on March 15, and almost immediately after his arrival the unsuccessful attempts to blow, up the houses of Parliament and the Tower or London were made. He was arrested, together with Whitehead, Fentherstone, and others, on April 6, and, five days later, after a trial of four days and a half before Chief Justice Coleridge, was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor, the jury having been out an hour and a half.

In the minds of Americans there has always been much doubt that Dr. Gallagher was in any way connected with the dynamiters, and it is on account of this that so many attempts have been made by the United States Government to secure his release. It was thought that Scotland Yard, in its desire to arrest some one took into consideration Gallagher's recent arrival in London, and "fixed up" a case on him. The chief testimony was given by a man named Lynch, who faisely swore that he worked in a carriave factory in Brocklyn. In Lynch's room was found a quantity of dynamiter, and when he was arrested he turned Nates evidence. Dynamite was found in Gallagher's recent arrival in London, and "fixed up" a case on him. In the mean time reports came that both Whitehead and Gallagher were insane. These were investigated by Ambassaider Bayard, and, although at first denied by the English officials, they later admitted it, and on Aug. 25 White-head and Gallagher were released.

FLOPING LOVERS OFERHAULED.

Minister Didn't Come-They Will Wed To day with the Bride's Parents' Consent. Edward Nora, a clerk in Dr. Lapaule's Italian pharmacy at 64 Spring street, met recently An toinette Falento, whose parents keep a boarding house at 118 Mulberry street. The young people fell in love with each other.

The girl's parents frowned on the attention Nora paid to Antoinette, as they did not consider him a good match. Finally they forbade him to the house, and Antoinette began to meet him secretly. After discussing the matter at great length the lovers concluded that her parents would never consent to the marriage, so they decided to elope.

Last night at 8 o'clock Antolnette dressed berself in her best, and wrapping an old shaw about her left the house. Her young brother met her on the street, and, catching the gleam of her new waist under the shawl, asked her where she was going. She replied evasively, hurried to the Hotel Canpladiglio, at 134 Bleecker street, where she met her lover. They had made arrangements to be married in the parlor of the hotel at 9 o'clock, but unfortunately the clergyman whom they had engage ' did not appear.

Meanwhile Antoinette's parents began to wonder where she was. Her young brother finally remembered that he had seen her hurrying up town, wearing her new waist. When he told his mother she nearly fainted, and, in less than ten minutes, the faitive helph borhood were aroused, for the Faientes are popular in Mulberry street. At 10:45 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Faiente, accompanied by nearly 200 relatives and friends, de-conded upon the Hotel Canpiadiglic and captured Antoinette and her lover in the parlor, where they were sill waiting for the clergyman.

Their coming aroused the entire neighborhood and so great was the uprose caused by the babble of voices that many thought a riot was in progress and policemen were summoned from the Macdougal and Mercer street stations.

The police could not get an intelligent explaration of the situation, and the whole party was marched off to the Mercer street station. Through the offices of two interpreters it was finally arranged that Edwarl and Antoinette should be married this afternoon at the home of her parents, and the entire party was distown, wearing her new waist. When he should be married this afternoon at the home of her parents, and the entire party was dis-charged.

OUT OF JAIL IN A HURRY.

HANDSOME HARRY PHILLIPS RUSHED OFF IN A CAR.

Collariess, Hatless, and Pale, He Was Yanked Away from Ludlow as if Botus a Mysterious Disappearance - Assurances that He Did Not "Esgayth."

A coupé stopped at the corner of Broome and Ludlow streets at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and two men alighted. One climbed up to the seat beside the driver, the other stood by the cab door holding it open. A few moments later three more men appeared. One of them was recognized as Harry Phillipa, otherwise known as "Handsome Harry," who has been confined in Ludlow street jail. Phillips wore no hat, collar, or necktie, and was pale and apparently much excited. His companions pushed him into the coupé; one took the seat next to him and the other sat opposite, craning his neck out of the window to keep a lookout behind. The man on the sidewalk climbed to the driver's seat, crying. "Now drive like --!"

The coupé dashed along Broome street to ward the Bowery and ran down two fruit peddlers' carts. It had not disappeared from sight before there arose the old familiar rallying cry of Ludlow street, "Der chall is owid."

The neighborhood naturally expected that there would be a pursuit, and a great crowd gathered on Ludlow street to see the keepers sally forth. But der chall is nothing if it is not disappointing. Inquirers at the door were told that there had been no escape, "to-day, ADY WAY."

A SUN reporter who called at the jail door had to wait for five minutes or more before any one appeared. Finally, a tall, broad-shouldered, yeilow-moustached keeper appeared at the grat-ing and peered out.
"Well, what now is it?" he saked with some ing and peered out.

"Well, what now is it?" he asked with some asperity.

"Did a man escape from the jail to-day?"

"It is not so. Who say dot ding? Hey? Der wass no exgayib, at all. He wass dischairedt properly from der chail. Dere was no such dings like an exgayib to-day."

"What was his name?"

"Harry Phillips: he was dischairedt, I say."

The door of the Warden's office opened, and Warden Roe appeared for a moment and made a remark inaudible to the reporters.

"Ach. no!" replied the keeper over his shoulder. "I will say no more now afterward, but only so much. He did not exgayib, not one bit. I say it all of myself, so! What I say I know. So it is. He wass dischairedt."

"By the order of what Justice?"

"What is dot? By Sheriff Damsen —."

Again the Warden's door opened, and the Warden's voice was heard, this time addressing the reporters:

"It is the Sheriff's positive rule that no one here communicate in any way with a reporter," he said. "I must refer you to the Sheriff."

As the reporter went down the steps there came a hoarse snort from the grating. He turned, "Look owid," whispered the keeper, menacingly. "Say what you remember. No older dings. Dere was no exgayib, He was dischairedt. I say no more."

Phillips was brought here on July 11 from Boston, charged with grand larceny. The criminal proceeding was dismissed, and he was locked up in Ludlow street fail to await trial in a civil action.

Capt. O'Brien's detectives know of no reason why Phillips should be afraid of rearrest after his discharge.

A. L. CARTLAND HANGS HIMSELF. He Was the Father of Grace Hawthorne the Actress-His Peculiarities.

PENTWATER, Mich., Sept. 4 .- Asa L. Cartland, the father of Grace Hawthorne, the actress, and of Blanche Shelby, once the wife of Dan Shelby, who was known locally as "Old Peachblow," hanged himself last night in the old dugon here used as a home for several years. Cartland was 75 years old, and had twice before attempted suicide.

He lived alone in the old hut, and would not permit any one to visit him except his daughterin-law. That the suicide was carefully planned is shown by the fact that two days ago his daughter-in-law noticed a rope, the same with which he hanged himself, hung up to dry over the stove. She attempted to take it down, but the old man told her to let it alone, as he was going to use it.

Cartiand was born in Maine, but has lived in Michigan about fifty years, and owned a splendaughter-in-law noticed a rope, the same one Michigan about fifty years, and owned a splen-did farm of a hundred acres. In addition to the daughters who are actresses he has another editor in Cairo, Egypt, and a son, Trac, Cartland, the Captain of a lake steamer, wife has lived in France with her daughter past ten years. The old man was a great dent, an ardent Wesleyan Methodist, a musician, and an inveterate smoker. He nearly blind.

STEWART CALLS LI A MONSTER. The Senator Puts the Earl and the Gold-

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4.- The opening gun of the Democratic campaign in this city was fired last night at Darley Park, where five thousand persons congregated to hear Senator Stewart of Sevada. The speaker paid his respects to ex-President Harrison, "the man who made the destruction of home rule the leading feature of his Administration," and then took up the his Administration," and then took up the Chinese Viceroy.

"When the money of any land is cornered," he said, "the people have no interest in the control of affairs—no more interest than the Chinese have in their country, where they have been robbed and kept in penury by the soulless mandarins. One of them is in this country today. Let the goldbugs honor that monster who for haif a century has governed a province of 35,000,000 of people by unexampled cruelty on the slightest signs of disturbance. That man who murdered thousands to keep himself in power, now presumes to lecture us because we are uncivil enough not to receive and accept the poor downtrodden slaves of his tyranny, who never can be made American citizens, and must necessarily corrupt and degrade our civilization."

STEAM COMPANY MUST QUIT.

Three Months' Time to Close Down at Fifty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue. Justice Smyth of the Supreme Court granted esterday to Georgette Goldschmidt an injunction which restrains the New York Steam Company from running its plant at 52 to 56 East Fifty-ninth street. Justice Smyth says:

Until the trial and decision of this action the defendant is hereby absolutely restrained from in any way using and operating its boiler and smokestack for the manufacture and proand smokestack for the manufacture and production of steam, and it is further ordered that if the defendant stipulates not to appeal from this order, to modify or vacate it, the injunction shall be in force only after Dec. 1, 1800."

There have been many complaints from the neighbors, who join with the plaintiff by afficient about the shower of cinders and soot, and the matter has been in the court. On the motion the company denied that there was any nuisance. It is going to move its plant.

ON FIRE AT HER WHARF.

The Steamer E. P. Shaw Burned After Discharging Her Passengers.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 4. - The steamer E. . Shaw, which attracted attention by her violation of the recent mandate against Sunday excursions issued by the Railroad Commission ers and by the local Police Commissioners, was burned to the water's edge this afternoon at her where at Dighton Rock Park. She left here at 2 P. M. with 100 persons aboard and arrived at 3:15. At 4:40 she caught fire near the boilers and before anything could be done to prevent the stread of the flames, her guy lines had been severed and she floated across Taunton River and grounded on the opposite shore.

NATIONAL BANK SHUT IN HELENA. The Fatture Due to Inability to Meet De mands of Eastern Creditors

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 4,-The failure of the First National Bank of this city was announced this morning by the posting of a notice that the bank was unable to meet withdrawals demanded

The notice was signed by E. D. Edgerton, Vice-President and manager, who says credit-ors will be paid in fuil. The directors refuse to talk and no statement of assets and liabilities has been made.

It is said the failure is due to the bank's inability to realize on assets to cover demands of Eastern creditors. Heavy demands have been made on the bank for the last week, it is said. The bank's surplus capital is $1,000,000, and it is the United States depository, with large United States funds on hand. The officers are S. T. Hauser, President; F. D.

Edgerton, Vice-President and manager, and George Hill, assistant cashier. Its directors are among the strongest men in Helena. The failure was not a surprise to all, for it was current talk on the streets last night that it would not open to-day. The officials had tried to suppress the rumors, hoping that the bank might open, and if it did they wanted to avoid a run. The A. J. Davis estate, famous for the litigation over the millions left by Davis, owns 55 per cent, of the capital, and it was claimed last night that young A. J. Davis, whose possession of the stock was a few weeks ago allowed by the claimants after a long fight, was coming from Butte with the cash to tide the bank over. Davis came, but the bank did not open. The failure of the bank caused no panic, the other banks being in good condition. The First National Bank falled in 1893.

SEWALL NOT TO RETIRE.

The Vice-Presidential Nominee Denies that He Is to Leave the Bryan Ticket. BATH, Me., Sept. 4 .- A report reached here to-day that Arthur Sewall was to get off the Bryan ticket, and that his withdrawal would be forthcoming by the first of next week. Mr. Sewall was found this noon at the Democratic headquarters, where he was in consultation with Chairman Hughes of the Democratic State Committee and the Hon. Charles S. Thomas of Colorado.

"Is it true that you are about to withdraw from the Chicago ticket?" asked a reporter. Mr. Sewall did not reply at once, but, turning to Mr. Thomas, he entered into conversation rith him in a low tone, and the two went to an adjoining room. They were gone about five ninutes. Mr. Sewall, in returning, said: "I desire that this be published over my

"'Apy statements or inferences that I propose o withdraw from the ticket are without foundation. I never had, and have not now, the remotest intention of doing so. "'ARTHUR SEWALL."

HARRISON HAS NO PITCHFORK. That Is One Beason Why He Can't Debate With Tillman. INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 4. - No one presumed, erhaps, for a minute that Gen. Harrison would take any notice of the challenge of Senator Tillman to debate the silver question, at indianapo-lis or any other place, but many could not help wondering what the ex-President thought of the proposition. He was standing, it was re-ported here, on the wharf near his cottage in the Adirondacks when the steamer brought a messenger with the Senator's telegram. Tearing open the envelope, he was seen to smile as he read and grasped the meaning of the message. Then turning to Tibbott, his secretary, to whom he read the message, he said with a humorous expression of countenance:

"I can't enter into a controversy with that man. I have no pitchfork." In This Way He Indicates His Views On the Democratic Ticket. CHICAGO, Sept. 4 .- A reporter asked Mr. Bryan to-night to say something about the ner by the Democrats, but Mr. Hryan refused to be interviewed. He remarked, incidentally, however, that Solomon had expressed the situation in the seventeenth verse, first chapter of Proverbs, which reads:

Surely in vain the net is spread in the sight of any bird."

CARLISTS THREATEN SPAIN

Their Deputies Leave the Chamber and They All Talk of Revolt. MADRID, Sept. 4.-The Carlist members of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies have with-drawn from Parliament as a mark of their disapproval of the passage of the unpopular Railway Subvention bill.

This action of the Senators and Deputies has caused great anxiety among the Ministers and members of the royal family. The masses of the Carlists threaten to withdraw to the hills. Senor Sanz, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, said to-day that the direction of the Carlist party would soon pass into the hands of military leaders, who have effected a perfect organization and are ready to take advantage of the first favorable occasion that

YONKERS, Sept. 4. - When the body of William Campbell, who was killed by lightning Thursday night, was examined by Coroner Miles today, a photographic reproduction of a shrub pear which Mr. Campbell stood when he was struck was found on the breast. It was outlined in red, and was perfectly distinct.

MISS SPENCER'S SUICIDE. Planed Her Sweetheart's Picture to Her

Dress and Hauged Herself. PETERSBURG, Va., Sept. 4. -- Miss Ritchie pencer, aged 20 years, daughter of Richard Spencer, a well-to-do farmer in Brunswick county, left home early this week to go to a county, left nome early this week to go to a search was made, and she was found in a smokehouse. She had taken her life by hanging herself with a plough line. Fastened to the front of her dress was the photograph of a young man who had been paying attention to her for some time. On the back of this photograph was written:

"Good-by, Drewry. I never expect to see you again."

"Flour Trust" Broken.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 4 .- The Northwestern Millers' Association, also known as the Flour Trust, has gone to the wall. It was organized a year ago to maintain a uniform price of flour and do away with competition. The books were closed and the pensity of one cent a barrel, which every manufacturer of flour paid into the trust as a guarantee that he would keep faith, was divided among those who remained faithful.

CHAIRMAN BYNUM OF THE DEMO-CRATS TO BEGIN WORK AT ONCE.

Hendquarters to Be Onened in Chicago and New York-The Proceedings of the Convention to Be Used as a Campaign Document - Complications in Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 4. - Senator Palmer and Mrs. Palmer left for Springfield, Ill., almost before daybreak to-day, so that there were few on the streets to cause any demonstration. Almost at the same hour Gen. Buckner and his Kentucky friends took the train for Louisville. The hotels were quickly emptied and there has been a day of quiet for the first time this week. Early in the morning Chairman Bynum met a few of the National Committee and others at the Grand Hotel. There were present Ben Cable, John P. Hopkins, and James F. Eckels of Illinois, D. G. Ambler of Florida, L. C. Krauthoff of Missouri, F. W. M. Catcheon of Minnesota, and John R. Wilson of Indiana. After a discussion of the various cities eligible as headquarters, Chicago was chosen, and it was ordered that a sub-headquarters be established in New York.

Chairman Bynum expects to go to Chicago and New York within a week to begin the work of the campaign in suitable quarters. He said that the contest is to be pushed all along the line by speakers and literature. "Every speaker of ability known," as he put it, "to be capable and A No. I on the money question" will be enlisted in the campaign. He is confident the Pal-mer-Buckner ticket will poll a million votes in the country. He said that when the official list of the Executive Committee is published, it will contain the names of L. C. Krauthoff, Missouri; John C. Bullitt, Pennsyl-Krauthoff, Missouri; John C, Bullitt, Pennsylvania; F. W. M. Cutcheon, Minnesota, and Editor W. B. Haideman, Kentucky. The other five members will be announced when he reaches New York. He wants to confer with New York lenders. Of the Convention, its results, and the prospects, Mr. Bynum said:

"The success of the sound-money Convention has far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its promoters. I consider its achievements the marvel of American political history. The organization is no temporary affair. We haveplanted the seed of true Democracy and glorious will be the productive fruit. The banner of Democracy has been at last properly inscribed and we will galiantly march behind it to ultimate success. It is my opinion that the dicket nominated yesterday, representing as it does the blue and the gray, signifying union forever, could not have been improved. The character of the two men is beyond reproach. They represent the true soldiers and honest public servants."

Of the humber of Siates that will put electoral tickets in the field Mr. Bynum said:

"I think nearly every State will do so. Of course, in a few sections where the cause is absolutely hopelees no electoral tickets will be hand. We will make our fight where it will do the most good."

It is the intention to print the proceedings of the Couvention for distribution as a campaign document, it contains so complete an exposition of the motives and purposes of the soundmoney movement, and the grade of its oratory is of so high an order that it is believed the sober-minded Democrat who studies his duty as between Bryanism and national honor will find profit in the perusal of the story. A million copies are to be printed.

The Indiana State Committee has decided not to noninate a State ticket. By doing so the silverite nominees, the regulars, as they call themselves, will be kept on their google bankor for Governor, however, E. F. Shitveley, an original Greenbacker, will be bolted by every voter for Palmer and Buckner, Gov. Mathews has said that he vania; F. W. M. Cutcheon, Minnesota, and Editor W. B. Haideman, Kentucky. UNHAPPY WASHINGTON POPOCRATS

Doubtful About Illinois, Kentucky, and Florida Faulkner Cheered with Bong.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 .- A flock of political campaign songsters flew into Popocratic headquarters to-day, with a mass of topical verses, constructed for use at Bryan and Sewall meet-The song writers and the song singer were ushered into the private office of Senator Faulkner, and as the Senator was somewhat downcast over the result of the Indianapolis Convention, he was gizd to have his mind di verted from the confusion the nomination of Palmer and Buckner has wrought in Illinois and Kentucky to the Popocrat ticket. He greeted the young ladies who proposed to sing the songs with his best brand of West Virginia gallantry, and had the patience to read over several of their compositions. One of the most attractive members of the party a dashing brunette, with a rich contralto voice, volunteered to sing one or more of the songs to the Senator. so that he might form an idea how they would take among a Free Silver-Popocratic assemb-lage. Senator Faulkner is very fond of music, and at his home he occasionally "hums a little" himself, but he doubted the propriety of allowing the young lady to sing to him during working hours. However, she was persistent, and he was too chivalrous to deny the request of a lady, so he tilted himself back in his revolving chair and patient'y listened while the young woman warbled about, "The dollars of our dad, the very best money we ever had."

Then there was another about: Rally boys, rally, at the rising of the sun.

We'll cradicate the gold bugs with our 16 to 1. While the vocal concert was in progress the clerks and helpers around headquarters were sympathizing with Senator Faulkner, and commending his good nature and endurance under such trying circumstances. The result of the interview was that the campaign song-sters were referred to Senator Jones, Chairman of the National Committee at Chicago. The Popocrats are not happy over the out come of the Indianapolis Convention. The nomination of Palmer and Buckner constitutes a much stronger ticket than they anticipated would be selected. At Popocrat headquarters a well-known Democrat, while discussing pated would be selected. At Popocrat headquarters a well-known Democrat, while discussing the situation shock his head regretfully as he remarked that he feared the nomination of Palmer and Buckner by the gold standard Democrats deprives Bryan of the electoral votes of Illinois and Kentucky. He added that he had just reurned from a political visit to the West, where the impression prevailed that Illinois was an exceedingly doubtful state, providing Gen. Palmer was the nomince at indhamaolis.

There are many gold standard Democrats in that State who hated to vote for McKinley, but they could not support livran. Now they have an opportunity to preserve their Democracy and at the same time go on record against free silver. Senator Faulkner and Representative Richardson are not willing to admit that the Indhamaolis Convention changes the situation a particle. They still claim that Bryan will carry both Illinois and Kentuc, y. They do not furnish any explanation of their claim, but it appears to be based entirely upon hose.

There is considerable apprehension felt by the Democratic leaders as to the fate of the Bryan-Sewall ticket in Florida. It has been known at Democratic headquarters for some time past that the Republicans were trying to capture that State with the assistance of the gold standard Democratis. At headquarters Representative Richardson said that Fiorlia is one of the few Southern State that has made carnest and continuous appears for campaign literature and other aid in making the light against the McKinley influences that are at work in that State, supposed to be under the direction of Senater Quay of Ponnsylvania. Mr. Richardson says he has not heard a word from South Carclins or ficergia on the subject of campaign breath a material, for in those two States everything appears to be moving along successfully in the direction of Bryan, but in Florida there have been repeated demands for as statuce, and Senator Call assens to be in great clauser of losing hissest in the Senate. It is true he has had is true he has had trouble with the railroad corporations before; in fact, while in the Senate he has spent most of his time introducing resolutions to inevatigate the Florida radiroads, supposed to be nostile to him. None of them has ever amounted to anything, and he still claims that he is being
